- *Boxes wanted!

November 20, 2025 Program Beth Davis from Waldor Orchids, NJ 'Orchids Are Different But Not Difficult'

Beth will bring plants for sale and a few supplies.

You can pre-order plants or supplies directly with Beth. See their website <https://www.waldor.com> to see what is available.

- Don't order through the website. Instead, send your pre-order request directly to Beth at linwoodorchid@gmail.com
- You will get 10% off supplies.
- Plants are full price.
- If you don't see what you want, ask Beth if that plant is available.

Throughout the year, Beth travels to botanical centers, garden clubs, and orchid societies across the East Coast, sharing her passion for lesser-known orchid genera like Bulbophyllum, Maxillaria, Coelogyne, and Dendrochilum—collectively known among fans as "Beth Plants."

Whether she's teaching at a public garden, inspiring hobbyists at an orchid society, or representing Waldor Orchids at a major orchid show, Beth's energy and expertise make her an unforgettable presence.

Her background extends far beyond the greenhouse. Beth has chaired the Ocean City Flower Show, partnered with the International Amphibian Days Organization, and volunteered extensively in environmental advocacy through Sustainable Monroe's Green Team and her town's Environmental Commission. As an American Orchid Society judge, she brings a respected voice to orchid exhibitions nationwide—and as a floral designer, she finds beauty in every petal, whether in a wedding bouquet or a rare specimen plant.

This season, Beth is on the road again, appearing at a variety of orchid-centric events. From hands-on orchid classes to keynote presentations, her upcoming engagements promise inspiration for beginners and seasoned growers alike. You'll not only learn about orchids—you'll learn how to see them differently.

Beth Davis isn't just an orchid grower—she's a lifelong cultivator of curiosity, color, and community. As a fourth-generation horticulturist at Waldor Orchids in Linwood, NJ, Beth brings nearly three decades of hands-on greenhouse experience to every event, class, and speaking engagement she leads.

President's Message

Welcome to November, the month of Thanksgiving. It is a two-part word, and we in the Maryland Orchid Society are thankful to be participants always willing to share our blooming successes and challenges, asking questions, and providing answers from our experiences. On the second part of Thanksgiving, there is still time to preregister your plant or materials donations to the MOS Auction. It's just about a week away on November 8. We have been asking for donations, providing guidance in the newsletters, and education talks, begging for volunteers, and you have responded well. Now I simply wish to encourage you to come and enjoy the day or a few hours with us. Not all plants are auctioned off. There are many prepriced Orchids available for instant purchase.

The October meeting had another incredible show table, with over a hundred plants in bloom, and an excellent education corner, and I hope you enjoyed my presentation on Inverse Potting. I'm happy more of my seedlings have found new homes. Should you have follow-up questions, please remember, your MOS contributors to Programs, the Newsletter and Education Corner talks appreciate your feedback.

A week following the October meeting the MOS Board meeting was held via Zoom. See highlights later in this newsletter. We will be reinstating annual Members Awards for Service and Leadership 2026.

It's getting colder outside, as we move from "frost" to "freeze" warnings now. If you still have plants outside, please take a chance to look back at the October 2024 newsletter MOSnews2410.pdf for Chris Zajac's article on preparing plants to come inside.

Just a few days after the auction will be our next monthly meeting, Thursday November 20. I am looking forward to Beth Davis from Waldor Orchids, NJ 'Orchids Are Different But Not Difficult'. Beth is another outstanding speaker and will have plants for sale and advance preorder.

Looking ahead to December the MOS pace slows a little to just our meeting on December 18. For those who are new, the December meeting is a holiday celebration gathering with no formal speaker. Still a show table and lots of good eats – more in the December newsletter.

Looking forward to seeing you all at the auction and monthly meeting. Remember November is the month of Thanksgiving. I am thankful for the opportunity to serve our society and the tremendous support you have given.

Please send the MOS Webmaster a gift card to get him out of jail!

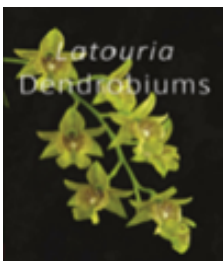

Ever get an e-mail or text message to this effect? Sadly, it is a common scamming technique perpetrated by today's thieves. Theft and deception are nothing new. Our favorite plant family, Orchidacea, has been employing deception for perhaps millions of years. For us, learning how to spot these traps can protect us from losses and abuse.

One of the first things to note is that these "phishing" (phone-fishing) texts are RARELY a result of one of us being hacked. The scammers do NOT need access to our accounts. They only need an address. A comparison I often use is that a person can take an envelope and put on a return address of "Franklin Roosevelt, The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, DC", put a stamp on it and mail it with a trickster letter inside. The letter will arrive as if it was from FDR without ever coming close to Washington. In the same way, a trickster can put any address in e-mail software and it will be delivered as if it came from that address. They buy lists of addresses from the dark web and send out MILLIONS of fraudulent e-mails in other people's names. Unfortunately there is little that can be done to stop the practice directly.

Here is what you should do to keep your sanity and keep you e-mail safe:

| 1. If an e-mail seems suspicious or even odd, DO NOT REPLY. If you have the e-mail headers turned on, you can often see the actual source of the e-mail and can block it in your e-mail program. I have reduced my spam receipts by 95% by consistently tagging junk mail and letting the e-mail program handle it. But it is a constant process. The scammers make their living by parasitizing people. |
| 2. If an e-mail request seems a little off, CALL THE PERSON instead. In addition to possibly preventing a theft, it's always good to keep up with our friends and colleagues. |
| 3. Common warning signs to watch out for include requests for money or gift cards, misspellings in the writing, a sense of high urgency, or warnings of dire consequences (account cancellation or legal actions). These tactics are used to override a recipient's natural caution. NEVER click on a link in a suspicious e-mail. Scammers can construct a message to appear like a legitimate address but actually take one to a fake site, some of which are brilliantly deceptive. If there is a suggested link, type the supposed address manually in a browser to check. Don't EVER credit card or bank account numbers to an e-mail or text query. ONLY use legitimate financials sites that YOU have navigated to. NO LINKS. |
| 4. You are not alone. Don't hesitate to ask about a concern with your geeky friends. Some of us really love to help elevate the general knowledge. I thrills me when I can frustrate a scammer by making his (and it's almost always a "him") scheme fail. |

Review of Latouria Dendrobium Publication, Book Report by Chris Zajac

Author Phil Spence's AOS publication has been added to the Maryland Orchid Society library. It took him over 50 years to collect and describe the 86 species of Dendrobium section Latouria orchids, do scale drawings, add personal notes, cultivation tips, photographs, and traits unique to the species discussed.

Spence draws attention to the more popular and easily obtainable species such as atroviolaceum, spectabile, johnsoniae, convolutum, engae, eximium, forbesii, macrophyllum, and normanbyense.

While observing and collecting many of the Latouria species, Spence recounts several dangerous adventures in the wilds of New Guinea. Maps and descriptions of orchid locations are included.

Due to security and bureaucracy issues and forbidding terrain, many areas of New Guinea are difficult and dangerous for any orchid lover to currently visit.

The role of habitat loss due to logging, agriculture, and mineral exploitation is reviewed. The enlistment of indigenous people in the future survival of dendrobiums, and other orchids, is a hopeful development.

For anyone with enough space to devote to a collection of Latouria dendrobiums or just wanting to do an armchair survey of what the New Guinea highlands have to offer, this informative and beautiful book should be the first work to consult.

The most comprehensive work published on Dendrobium section Latouria. Author: Phil Spence. 308 pages. A beautiful monograph on Dendrobium section Latouria in hardcover format. A great gift idea! Available at aos.org store.

Judges Choice
Sigmatostylix radicans brought in by Eric Wiles.

Wow! My friends, you give inspiration with your skill and dedication to growing orchids! There were 111 blooming plants on this show table, and not just quantity but quality and diversity in abundance. The judges' choice for the evening went to the massive specimen of Sigmatostylix radicans brought in by Eric Wiles. Our judges for the evening were Nicolle Halperin, Todd Jackson and Laura Sobelman. We continue to have great participation by new members and enthusiastic and decisive volunteer judges. Exhibitors not mentioned above were Jill Allen, Brandt Braunschweig, Babara Pralle, Laura Sobelman, Sarah Spence, and Phuong Tran and Rich Kaste.
